

Creepy, Insane, and Dangerous Propaganda on Irish Television

by Jeremy James

Regular readers will know that this is a watchman ministry. While it is aimed primarily at born-again Christians, we try at all times (as best we can) to reach those who have not yet found Jesus.

Basically a watchman ministry keeps a close watch on the church and the war which the world wages continually against the saints. Where we discern something which believers ought to know about, we bring it to their attention:

“A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself:
but the simple pass on, and are punished.”
(Proverbs 22:3)

These items are often unsavory, dealing with the many ways the Enemy is attacking and undermining the church, and even mankind in general. For this reason it is not a pleasant job, but it is very fulfilling. Along the way we come across issues which many Christians would rather not know about, issues which reveal the awful wickedness of the Enemy and his hatred of Christ. They don't want to be reminded of the war or the demands which this ongoing conflict might make on them – on their time, energy, and personal resources. They would rather we spoke more about the sweet rewards of the Christian life and concentrated less on what the Enemy is up to.

We would love to do that! But, alas, the issues we are raising take priority. This has become especially apparent over the past few years as the war has greatly intensified and the attack on the church has reached a terrifying pitch.

When Satan induces our pastors to lock the doors of our churches, we know something is very seriously wrong. When believers come together in church with masks on their faces – to worship the LORD! – we can be sure a great darkness has descended. When our elderly brothers and sisters are left alone to die in care homes, with no-one by their side to comfort them, we can see a cold void in the hearts of those who profess Christ only in name.

As bad as this was, it got worse when Christians encouraged each other to take an experimental serum produced by the kings of pharmakeia, the pharmaceutical industry. Virtually no-one paused to ask the most obvious questions! The Word of God warned of the awful role that sorcery (pharmakeia) would play in the End Time, but our pastors, preachers and elders ignored His Word and placed their trust instead in the mendacious vipers who control this industry.

We could cry Shame! Shame! but we'd be wasting our time.

What has to happen before Christians wake up?

It is hard to say what exactly must happen before the majority of Christians realize that Satan is out to destroy them and their families. At what point will they wake up and say, 'Hey, these guys want us out of the way'? The UN, the World Health Organization, the transnational corporations, our own governments and all the big institutions that we fondly believed were working for us are, in reality, working against us. They serve Satan, not the welfare or betterment of mankind.

We have given this introduction in order to place our latest examples in context. To most people these televised scenes may seem fairly harmless; a little strange, perhaps, but harmless. But if we follow the strings which manipulate these marionettes – which, as Christians, we ought to do – we will see how a gullible public is being utterly deceived.

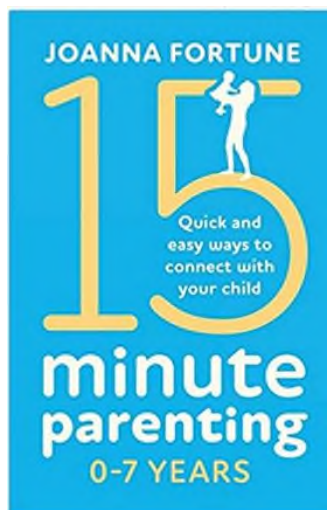

When we came across our first example, it seemed like a spoof, a hoax interview intended for comic effect. In a cosy Christmas setting we were treated to nine minutes of mock-serious absurdity – or so it seemed – as three people discussed novel ways to help children address “challenging life experiences.”

The challenges in question were mask-wearing and nasal virus testing.

The Irish government had just decreed that the age from which students in the classroom should be obliged to wear a mask would be reduced from 13 to 9 years with immediate effect. In order to make this perversion appear medically acceptable, Virgin Media aired a slot on its morning magazine show, Ireland AM, in which a clinical psychotherapist offered advice on the steps parents could take to “normalize” the experience for their children.

Since Ireland AM is the only televised ‘breakfast show’ in this country, Virgin Media had access to an unusually large audience with its bizarre message.

The invited guest was Joanna Fortune, a clinical psychotherapist with probably the highest public profile in this country in the field of child behavior. Ms Fortune is the author of a series of bestselling books on ‘15-Minute Parenting’ and would thus be expected to offer a rational assessment of what the government was doing to our children. Alas, she did the opposite, subjecting the parents of Ireland to what can only be described as a bizarre and troubling spectacle.

Prompted by questions from Alan Hughes and Muireann O’Connell, the Virgin Media presenters, Ms Fortune produced a toy doll and proceeded to describe to viewers an easy way to make a face mask to put on the doll:

Ms Fortune envelops the doll’s face in a homemade face mask.

The doll, which would appear to represent a baby aged 6 months or so, is intended to serve as a teaching aid for children. The mother is supposed to make the mask and then show her child – who might be 3 or 4 years old – how to attach the mask to the doll’s face. Seemingly this activity, which should be repeated many times, will “normalize” mask wearing for the child. So, even if the child is under age 9 and not obliged to wear a mask, he or she will be entirely comfortable with the sight of their older siblings wearing a mask, not to mention their parents or other adults.

Ms Fortune also mentioned in passing that the steps for making the mask, without the use of a sewing machine, are set out in a YouTube tutorial. We checked to see what she might be referring to and found a video which carries an on-screen endorsement by the CDC – see screen-shots overleaf. The technique used by Ms Fortune is almost identical to the one used in the video.

Any discussion of the stress and emotional conflict that mask-wearing was bound to cause many children was confined solely to mitigation. There was no acknowledgement that mask wearing per se was harmful, or that a great many parents perceived it as harmful. Ms Fortune never alluded to the fact that many professional studies had shown that masks were useless in preventing the spread of viral infections and that they caused respiratory difficulties. Ignoring the psychological harm, she advised instead that parents teach their children to concentrate on the eyes of the mask wearer and to ignore what they could not see, namely the part of the face covered by the mask.

The show merely discussed how best to persuade a child that it was now normal to wear a mask and that exercises like the one she had just described were needed to handle “challenging life experiences.”

It is difficult to comment on something so cruel and unnatural. Virgin Media were able to air this despicable charade on daytime television because they are part of the propaganda machine that the government is using to brainwash the people of this country. If one aired a similar show explaining how to put masks on animals, the nation would be in uproar: Oh those poor little animals! But the parents of Ireland – or a fair proportion of them at least – are prepared to tolerate this shameless Marxist propaganda and even submit their children to the wicked indignity prescribed by the Cabal.

Less than one percent of the population seem to realize that our country has been taken over by International Communism.

Just when we thought the Virgin Media circus had run its course, Ms Fortune embarked on another jaw-dropping tutorial. This time she took hold of the surrogate and began poking its nasal cavity with a cotton bud – see screenshot below.

The object of this second exercise, apparently – which a child is supposed to imitate – was to condition the child to accept regular nasal-based Covid testing as “normal.”

We share below just a few of the many comments posted online when the video was put up on YouTube [<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3MOO4mnwJP8>]:

“This has got to be the sickest thing I've ever seen... And I was a fan of horror movies.”

“This is insane. No-one in their right mind could actually take this TV programme seriously. They have all lost their minds.”

“I think we have to start seeing how hypnotized these people are, literally like people performing on stage, running around like sheep under the control of the hypnotist – in this case the media and the government.”

“It's like they're trying to outdo each other in how warped and depraved they can be.”

“My daughter is 10 and will not be wearing a mask, even if that means keeping her out of school. I feel so angry with this.”

“Future generations of psychotics explained in one easy lesson.”

“If you put a mask on a child you are abusing your child. Just watching this as a grandmother makes me so angry and sick to my stomach. I'm glad my two sons and daughter are grown up.”

“This is utterly evil!”

“Absolutely outrageous. How can this be televised and presented as acceptable behaviour towards small children? It beggars belief.”

“Beyond reprehensible... Shocking beyond belief.”

“Each one of these people will stand Infront of God on Judgement day... and they will have to answer for these despicable violations.”

“Normalizing child abuse on daytime television.”

“Blood boiling, stomach sick...”

Time to think about mandatory Covid vaccination, says EU chief - video

The President of the EU Commission, Ursula Von der Leyen, said mandatory Covid vaccination will have to be considered. There are 150 million people in the EU who have not yet been jabbed. The average adult participation rate is 77 percent, she said.

Von der Leyen is in the Albrecht bloodline, which is closely related to several European royal families. They are all members of the Illuminati cult that controls Europe.

RTE is even worse

RTE, the national broadcaster, is ahead of other stations in its cunning use of propaganda and its relentless mockery of all that is natural and wholesome. Its contempt for Christianity is palpable at times.

In 1981 I worked with a man who played quite regularly at the Grange golf club in west Dublin. Many senior members of the Garda Siochana – the Irish police – also played there. He got to know these gentlemen quite well and was sometimes privy to information which the public did not normally get to hear. Some of them conducted surveillance operations at the RTE headquarters in Donnybrook and remarked to him, on more than one occasion, that the place was “overrun by Marxists and homosexuals.”

As a center of subversive propaganda, it continues in the same vein today, serving the Cabal by attacking Christian values, promoting sodomy and abortion, and placing as many covert transgenders in the public arena as it can.

It has played a major role in promoting the Covid vaccine scandal in this country, assisting the government at every turn with its shameless fearmongering, bogus statistics, deceitful reports, and vulgar pseudo-science. As an operational arm of the Irish ruling Elite, it has been used to poison the minds of the Irish people and convince them that, unless they do exactly as the government tells them, they would contract a deadly respiratory disease and die slowly in acute distress. Sadly, the Irish fell headlong into this cesspit of deceit.

The government – with considerable assistance from RTE – spreads its filthy lies over the green fields of Ireland.

For the past year it has used a variety of tricks to convince the Irish that, for the sake of their neighbor, they should take the Covid ‘vaccine’, wear masks, stand six feet apart, and avoid social contact as much as possible. Reckless self-contamination with an experimental genetic serum is now deemed socially desirable, non-compliance is almost on a par with manslaughter, and everyone is deemed sick until they can prove otherwise. The non-vaccinated are being slowly ostracized, while the so-called ‘Covid Pass’ is fast becoming the only way to gain entry to an ever-expanding list of retail outlets, hotels, bars, cinemas, theatres, and similar establishments.

One of the many tricks used by RTE included a sketch on the very popular ‘Toy Show’ episode of The Late Late Show, which airs annually a few weeks before Christmas. This particular episode is intended to be jolly, sentimental and carefree – a million miles from the morbid realities of everyday life. But it was the ideal place to insert a coy piece of mental conditioning. In November, 2020, the Irish were given a salutary lesson in good behavior by a child, in a setting where her innocence shone like a beacon in the night.

A sweet little girl played the role of a ‘Super Vet’, giving precocious answers to the questions put to her by the compere, Ryan Tubridy. She explained how her toy dog, Tony, had been playing with a number of other dogs whom the HSE suspected of having “the Coronavirus.” The first thing she did was compile a list of “known contacts” and mail it off to the HSE:

Broadcast 27 November, 2020

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Ug_1lIUNTj8

She then tested the dog for Coronavirus and found he was positive. So she brought him over to “the regurgitation station” in case he needed to vomit after receiving the vaccine. She also took another precaution in case he proved uncooperative. This involved hitting the dog over the head with a mallet. “He’s not participating [cooperating] so we’re going to have to knock him out!” she said.

“Now we need to get him a Pfizer vaccine.”

Incredibly, though barely 8 years old, she specified the brand of vaccine to be used, namely Pfizer. The sketch was scripted by RTE and she followed it faithfully.

Finally, she took hold of Tony and put him in a “pod” – “He has to stay in this pod for the next 87 days!”

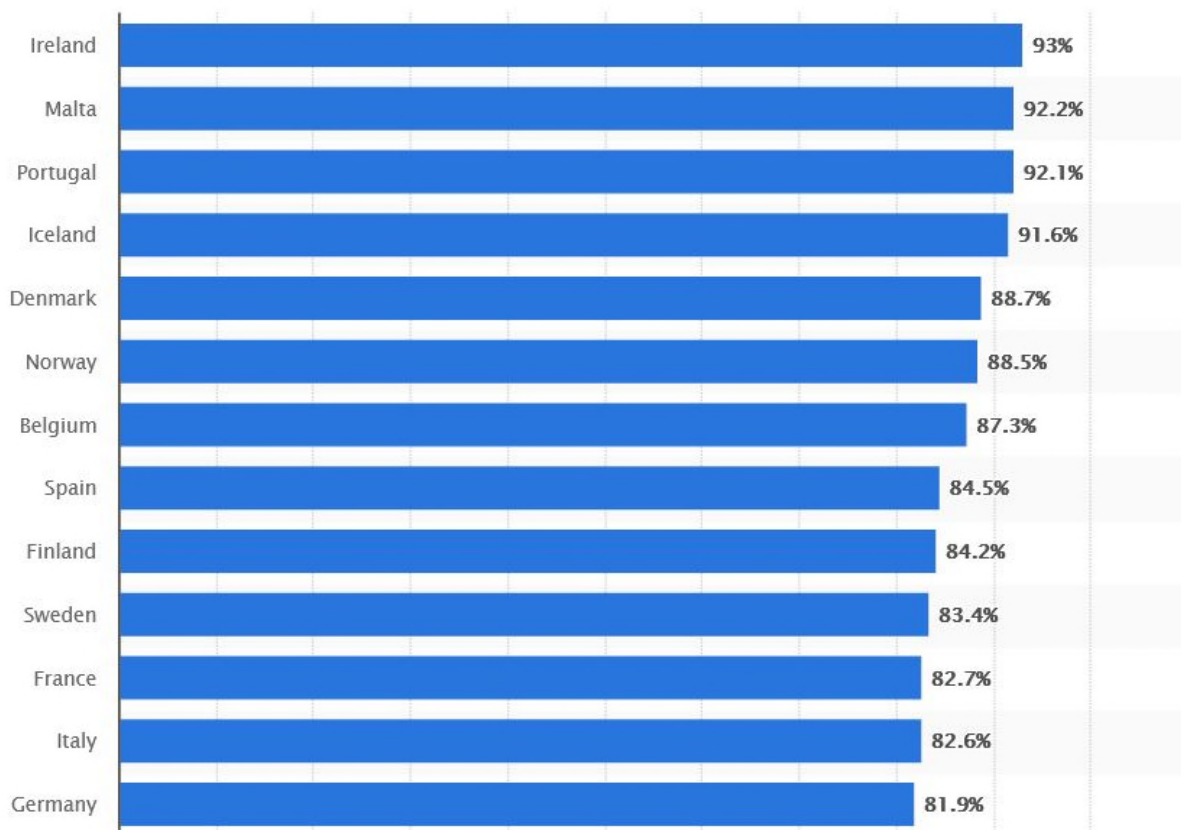

Why 87 days? Ah, there is deep psychology behind this seemingly innocent sketch. The people of Ireland were being reminded that they too had been locked in a “pod” – nationwide quarantine – in the first ‘lockdown’ of 2020 by the all-powerful, mallet-in-hand government authorities.

How long was their involuntary incarceration? Exactly 87 days. [See Appendix A.]

Like obedient little children, they did what they were told by the government in 2020, and they would do so again in 2021 by taking the vaccine.

Did they get the message? Apparently they did. As of start-December, more than three quarters of the population have been Pfizerized. Of the adult population (over 18), the Pfizerization rate is 93% – the highest in the world! – while the proportion who have taken a booster is already at 18%. The government is now pressing hard to vaccinate all children over the age of 5 years. As far as we can tell, the proportion of parents who are agreeing to this is disturbingly high. Recent propaganda, such as that aired on Virgin Media, is luring more and more of our gormless, uninformed parents into this awful trap.

CONCLUSION

The science of mental manipulation or "brainwashing" is far more advanced than most people realize (See our paper #244). When Vance Packard published his bestseller, The Hidden Persuaders, in 1957, the average American was taken aback by the range and effectiveness of the techniques that were being used by the big corporations to control their retail spending habits. The science of mental manipulation has been exhaustively studied and expanded since that time – by the big corporations! – and hidden carefully from public view. The secrets are closely guarded and even students of advanced psychology do not appear to be aware of the persuasive arsenal that is currently being deployed against the civilian population.

As we said in our earlier paper, “No similar book, with an equally high profile, has come on the market since then to alert later generations to the existence of this kind of technology. Thus it can safely be said that, in 1957, far more Americans understood the power of hidden persuasion than do so today.”

The same tools of persuasion have been used to great effect to convince the masses that they are threatened with annihilation by a dangerous virus, which, of course is patent nonsense. They have been persuaded that this scary pathogen is mutating into even more lethal and contagious variants, which is also absurd. And they have been persuaded that the only “product” that will make them “whiter than white” and wash away all those naughty bugs is made by Pfizer, Moderna, AstraZeneca, and Johnson & Johnson. Either you take the vaccine or you die an agonizing death, gasping for breath.

Advertising works! No matter how much data emerges to show that these products are both useless and harmful, the public are unable to override their mental conditioning. They feel they must have this product. Everyone else is getting it and they don't want to be left out.

Hypoxia cases

Those in the medical field have been subjected to some additional persuasion. They saw cases in 2020 where healthy young adults were suddenly overcome by a life-threatening respiratory condition akin to hypoxia or dry pneumonia. Many survived, but no-one thought to ask what exactly had caused this strange set of symptoms. They simply accepted the ‘Covid-19’ explanation. If autopsies had been performed – which the governments would not allow – they would have found no evidence to support the official explanation. And no such proof has ever been produced.

The most likely alternative cause – the presence of microscopic pollutants in the victims' lungs – was never examined. Given that nanograde toxins can be distributed quite easily in aerosol form, or by other means such as flu vaccines, this avenue of infection should have been thoroughly investigated. But it wasn't.

There is compelling evidence, notably from the UK, that the overall death rate – from all causes – has gone up significantly in 2021 compared to the five-year average. All of this points to an additional adverse factor affecting public health, namely the vaccine. The authorities will not admit this. Neither will the medical profession. But whistleblowers and those close to the families affected have been warning that the vaccine is the cause.

The Daily Exposé website, which has done much to expose the Covid lies being told by the NHS and the UK government, published a superb article on 1 December in which an experienced biomedical scientist (who chose to remain anonymous) outlined the many lies being spread by the World Health Organization, the NHS, and the pharmaceutical companies in order to frighten the public and perpetuate the Covid Hoax. Since that site now appears to be out of commission, we attach in Appendix B a version of the paper published on another excellent website, healthimpactnews.

RTE, Virgin Media, and other television stations, along with Communist rags like The Irish Times, The Irish Independent, and The Sunday Times, will continue to peddle the lies which this scientist has exposed. They will continue to lead a naïve and unthinking public further and further down the road of disinformation and state-sponsored deception. Many of the adults who have held out to date – a mere 7 percent in Ireland – will come under increasing pressure in 2022 to do the “noble” thing and take the vaccine.

Meanwhile, the ruthless brainwashing of Irish parents will continue. Confused and frightened, a large proportion of them are likely to submit and bring their children to the vaccination center. Will it even occur to them, as they do so, that the ‘vaccine’ is an untested, unproven, experimental serum and that it is highly reliant on technology which has never produced a safe and effective vaccine for use in animals?

In a lily-white world where everyone can be trusted, this would be a dangerous step to take, but in a world controlled by grasping, deceitful and corrupt organizations it is a sign of mass psychosis.

Will our pastors ever speak out?

Will our pastors ever speak out? Will those elderly Christians, who for years flaunted their righteousness before new believers, now deign to rise from their upholstered sofas and condemn this evil?

There is little indication that this will happen. When people don't actually BELIEVE the Word of God, no matter how knowledgeable they may be, they are prey to the brainwashing and indoctrination techniques which the prince of this world is so skilled at applying.

When a clinical psychotherapist advises parents to teach their children to put face-covers on dolls and prepare to live in perpetuity in a world of masks and virus-testing, those who should know better should speak out, but they are not saying anything. Even as the breath of little children is being constrained, they back away and wait for normality to return! They believe – or pretend to believe – that the government knows best.

Tyranny thrives on abject compliance. What will these parents say to their children in the years ahead? (“We were only following orders.”)

The wonderful God who made us gave us the air we need to breathe. He made the laws by which we live. When governments make up their own laws and gag the mouths of little children, we know we are dealing with Satan and those who serve him.

We would do well to dwell on the words of Job when he described both the awesome goodness and the sovereign authority of God:

“In whose hand is the soul of every living thing, and the breath of all mankind.” (Job 12:10)

Our breath, and that of our children, is in the hands of God. When we permit the Enemy to intervene, to constrain our breath in any way, we are reneging on our duty to honor and respect what God has given us. We are looking instead to another authority and allowing him to come between us and our Creator.

Those who love God will see this for what it is: Sheer wickedness.

They will also see the Irish government for what it is, a bastion of blasphemy and a covenant of darkness. These men and women hate the God of Christianity and reject Jesus of Nazareth, the Son of God. They are co-operating fully with their counterparts abroad in a wicked criminal conspiracy to bring our country into the New World Order and they are prepared to pass and enforce as many cruel and oppressive laws as they need to achieve this.

Daily Exposé paper, as published by Health Impact News

Virology's Voodoo Scientism Is Not Real Science

The purported novel coronavirus called SARS-CoV-2, has not been proven to exist in nature and has not been established as the cause of “COVID-19”, the pandemic disease concocted by the World Health Organisation (WHO). Likewise, there are no variants of the “virus”, which also only exist hypothetically in computers, and in online gene banks.

This COVID-19 fraud has enabled the widespread use of highly experimental and dangerous injections that contain a computer-generated spike protein mRNA sequence that instructs the body to poison itself. These injections also contain undeclared non-biological substances for unknown purposes and are killing many thousands of people worldwide and seriously harming many more.

Virological fraud enables these crimes against humanity because SARS-CoV-2 has never been physically isolated or shown to be the causal agent of COVID-19.

The genome of a “virus” that hadn't been isolated and purified, was published in early January 2020, named SARS-CoV-2 by the International Committee on Taxonomy of Viruses on 11 February, the same day the WHO's Director-General, Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, announced its supposed resultant disease (COVID-19) with symptoms that are indistinguishable from other respiratory diseases.

The vast majority of the public and the medical profession are unaware that modern virology uses anti-scientific methods to claim the existence of the SARS-CoV-2 virus as well as other viruses. Most people would be surprised to learn that the “virus” has never been found inside a human or shown to be the cause of any disease.

The COVID-19 fraud requires the absence of this virus so there is no material reference against which the computer-generated genome can be cross-checked.

Virology's double deception is as follows:

(1) The substitution of the dictionary and scientific meaning of the noun isolate for the opposite meaning. Isolate (real definition): Chemistry, Bacteriology. to obtain (a substance or microorganism) in an uncombined or pure state.

(2) The substitution of the proxy of inducing cytopathic effects (CPEs) by inoculating abnormal cell lines in vitro for the established proxy of infecting a non-diseased host in vivo to determine causality between the proposed pathogen and the disease.

Even using “normal” healthy cell lines would not establish causality by Koch’s postulates or any other scientific postulates used to establish causality, because they are only in vitro observations involving alleged viruses.

The production of CPEs is central to modern virology’s fraudulent claims of isolation and pathogenicity: a sample (e.g. a nasal swab) is taken from a person and added to some cells in a test tube, if the cells die, it is falsely declared that a virus has been “isolated”.

By definition, a virus is an infectious particle that can cause a disease in a living host. None of these defining properties have been demonstrated in any of the virological experiments describing supposed isolation and pathogenesis.

Virologists spent several decades attempting this unsuccessfully but instead of admitting to a problem with the whole virus theory, they just changed the meaning of the word isolate in the 1950s. Virologists do not actually isolate viruses, they just falsely claim that they do.

The process virologists use to claim “isolation” can be summarised as follows:

From the mixed biological “soup” taken from a patient’s lungs or nose swabs containing all sorts of material including human cells, innumerable commensal microbes, and potential contaminants (bacteria, fungi), de novo assembly platforms search for short genetic fragments. After finding millions of unique fragments in the soup, the software programmes then piece together one long piece (a “genome”) based on parameters set in the programme. There is some cutting-and-pasting of sequences and if pieces are “missing” other ready-made templates can be added to fill the gaps. The man-made algorithms, probability models and arbitrary selections cannot determine its physical existence in nature, because any coronavirus “genome” used as a template in its production will also be hypothetical.

This methodology provides no confirmable connection with the material or physical world, which makes the newest member of the Coronavirus genus just another product of virology’s self-referential processes. This is how virologists keep inventing viruses to stay in business, providing pharmaceutical companies with the justification for producing lucrative vaccines.

The anti-science of virology and the perversion of the word “isolation” is delusional, dishonest and highly misleading. It is not a sound basis for the health and well-being of individuals or whole populations.

Fan Wu et al. were the first inventors of the SARS-CoV-2 genome and used a patient's lung fluid sample for de novo sequencing assembly platform analysis to search for short genetic fragments or "reads". It is important to understand that the samples sequenced were not physically isolated viruses but crude samples containing millions of genetic fragments from the patient himself, and the numerous different microbes (bacteria, fungi) that make up the microbiome, as well as potential environmental contaminants.

It's not clear how Fan Wu et al. knew which "genome" to choose when all of the options were hypothetical computer constructs, but they chose the longest (30,474 nucleotides), because it had a nucleotide identity of 89.1% with the in silico (computer-generated) bat coronavirus genome (SL-CoVZC45) that was invented in 2018. It was subsequently reduced to 29,875 nucleotides in the next version on GenBank perhaps to make it look more like the 29,802 nucleotides of the bat model genome. The final model was redrawn with a completely different terminal sequence featuring 23 consecutive adenine bases, thereby making it look more like the bat model which featured 26 consecutive adenine bases on its tail.

On the basis that RNA of unknown origin was part of the culture in which many cells died (perhaps due to induced starvation and stress with cytotoxic substances), Fan Wu et al claimed that they had successfully isolated the 2019-nCoV BetaCov virus.

This fraud was rewarded with grants in 2020 totalling US$900,000 from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation made to the two institutions with which 14 of the 19 co-authors of the fraudulent paper were affiliated.

Peng Zhou et al. then made their contribution to the fraud by publishing a paper that fulfilled none of the postulates to identify a virus or confirm it as being causative of any disease. The supposed virus was not physically isolated and purified for biochemical characterisation and so remains entirely theoretical.

The Chinese Academy of Sciences, with which 24 of the 27 co-authors were affiliated, were rewarded with a 2020 COVID-19-related grant totalling US$359,820 from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

Na Zhu et al. also claimed isolation of the virus, but it is clear that the authors do not mean "isolation" in the dictionary scientifically postulated sense but virology's substituted antonymic meaning and the substitution of diseased for non-diseased host cells to establish causality between a purported virus and the patient's symptoms.

Unlike Fan Wu et al. and Peng Zhou et al., Na Zhu et al. did produce images of what they called "2019-nCoV particles" but without any verification of their biochemical composition from a purified specimen. It is not possible to establish from their images that the particles are infectious disease-causing viruses or that they contain the alleged SARS-CoV-2 genome.

“Although our study does not fulfil Koch’s postulates, our analyses provide evidence of implicating 2019-nCoV in the Wuhan outbreak.” Na Zhu et al

This claim is based on pictures of extracellular vesicles of unknown composition and origin which the authors have named “2019-nCoV”.

The National Institute for Viral Disease Control and Prevention, with which 13 of the 18 co-authors of the Na Zhu et al paper were affiliated were rewarded with US$71,700 in 2020 from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation for this fraudulent research.

Caly et al. claimed that Vero cells (monkey kidney cells) “showed cytoplasmic membrane-bound vesicles containing coronavirus particles”, but were not able to see typical “virions” with the spike protein. They added more protein-digesting trypsin to the cell cultures which digested the outer protein layer of a 100 nm spherical “virion” to manufacture “the characteristic crown-like fringe of spike proteins”, thereby they “immediately improved virion morphology.” In other words, when the vesicles (possibly exosomes) did not look like their expectations of a coronavirus, they artificially engineered it with an extra-large dose of the enzyme trypsin.

These supposed virions were not purified so their biochemical composition could not be confirmed. The “genome” was in fact put together after generating “approximately 30,000,000 reads” from the tissue culture mix. As with all other papers of this nature, no explanation was provided as to how these particles are known to cause disease or whether these same particles exist inside humans. Scientifically speaking they can only be called extracellular vesicles of unknown significance, produced by stressed abnormal monkey kidney cells in vitro.

Despite the deceptions permeating virology, virologists still adhere to their non-scientific beliefs. This is scientism not science.

Scientism is the uncritical application of technical methods which becomes a secularised belief system relying for its authority on its own presupposition and performativity. Assumptions, hypotheses and abstractions are considered to be conclusive and real.

In contrast, the scientific method includes the following:

- (1) Objective observation: Measurement and data.
- (2) Evidence.
- (3) Experiment and/or observation as benchmarks for testing hypotheses.
- (4) Induction: reasoning to establish general rules or conclusions drawn from facts or examples.
- (5) Repetition.

(6) Critical analysis.

(7) Verification and testing: critical exposure to scrutiny, peer review and assessment.

Virologists claim that they have elucidated the entire genomes of viruses such as “SARS-CoV-2” and they upload this onto databanks. They claim that they have an “isolate” of the virus but this is declared after they have constructed the genome from their mixed brew containing genetic fragments of unknown origin using computer algorithms.

Virologists do not work with a complete genome because they do not work with a complete virus. They work with random bits of biological material and then claim that it constitutes evidence of a virus. When their experiments are examined carefully there is no material proof of a virus.

No virus called SARS-CoV-2 has ever been properly isolated and purified as a whole unique structure. What happens is the shotgun sequencing of crude samples that contain numerous mixed genetic fragments of unknown origin. Shotgun sequencing is a method used for sequencing random DNA strands which is named by analogy with the semi-random shot grouping of a shotgun. There is no evidence whatsoever that the resulting in silico “genome” actually exists in nature or has anything to do with a “virus”. The invention of the “virus” is presented as a discovery, its faux status is secured through the act of naming it into existence.

The PCR (Polymerase Chain Reaction) can only amplify selected nucleotide sequences but cannot determine their provenance or significance. The Virology PCR fraud relies on the attribution of meaning to the amplified sequences:

(1) Reference to the imaginary in silico genome but not to a proven physical entity called SARS-CoV-2.

(2) Reference to a “disease” that with absurd circular reasoning has been defined by the PCR result itself.

The fraudsters disingenuously refer to the PCR as the “gold standard” test but in reality, at best it is merely a surrogate test for a whole virion and at worse, it is a false positive artifact generating test.

When PCR is performed badly and/or at high cycle numbers (as has been common) the target sequence may not even be present in the sample and a “positive” result is simply an artefact of the PCR process. The PCR cannot diagnose the infectious status of a person in any proven way and no consistent link has ever been found between a disease state and the PCR results.

The misapplication of a completely inaccurate PCR means that COVID-19 is a scientifically meaningless construct that is nothing more than a self-referential illusion.

Christian Drosten et al. published non-peer reviewed PCR assay sequences designed to detect the purported virus “without having virus material available” in January 2020.

The Drosten paper was published in Eurosurveillance on 23 January which was only two days after submitting the manuscript. Drosten who is facing charges for holding a fraudulent doctoral title did not declare that he was a member of the Eurosurveillance editorial board.

Chantal Reusken a co-author, also failed to declare that she was on the Eurosurveillance editorial board. Olfert Landt another of Drosten’s co-authors who is CEO of TIB the maker of a lucrative PCR kit based on the published assay sequences didn’t declare his conflict of interest until 29 July 2020.

Mass PCR testing using the Drosten protocol quickly resulted not in a viral pandemic but a PCR pandemic. The university hospital of Charité Berlin where many of the Drosten PCR authors were based subsequently received a 2020 “covid” grant totalling US$249,550.70.

The PCR has been designed to detect genetic sequences of a “virus” that has not been proven to exist in nature but instead is detecting sequences of unknown origin and generates high numbers of false positive results.

As a result of PCR testing, medical tyranny has been imposed on most of the world, based on scientism disconnected from the real world and so absurd that detecting a few genetic fragments of something in one person can be used as the excuse to lock up an entire country.

The completely useless PCR test generated astronomical case numbers which then formed the basis of “COVID-19” outbreak computer models. Outbreak modelling is notorious for its inaccurate predictions and produced “COVID-19” numbers that were preposterous and all based on worthless numbers.

Lockdown flouting Neil Ferguson of Imperial College London (ICL) has a long history of producing doom mongering wildly inaccurate speculative nonsense with his computer modelling.

In 2001, the ICL team did the modelling on foot and mouth disease which led to a cull of six million sheep, pigs and cattle costing the UK approximately £10 billion. The ICL work on this has been described as ‘severely flawed’ by real experts.

In 2002, Ferguson predicted that up to 50,000 people would die from mad cow disease which he claimed could rise to 150,000 if sheep were involved. In the UK, the total number of deaths was 177.

In 2005, Ferguson claimed that up to 200 million people could be killed by bird flu. The total number of deaths was 282 worldwide.

In 2009, Ferguson and the ICL team claimed that swine flu would kill 65,000 people in the UK. In reality, swine flu killed 457 people in the UK.

Ferguson was the lead author of an ICL Report, published without peer review on 16 March 2021, predicting that 550,000 people in the UK and 2.2 million people in the US would die from COVID-19 within approximately three months.

When the Ferguson reports programming was eventually released for public scrutiny it was ridiculed by academic experts. It relied on 13-year-old computer coding intended to model flu which was a “buggy mess that looks more like a bowl of angel hair pasta than a finely tuned piece of programming” according to one expert. Scientists at the University of Edinburgh reported that it failed “the basic scientific test of producing the same results given the same initial set of parameters”.

The ICL was rewarded with Gates Foundation grants for 2020 totalling US$91,494,791. Since 2002 the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation have provided ICL with grants totalling US$302,164,640, which is US$16,000,000 per year for the last 19 years.

Inaccurate computer models based on false case numbers have resulted in fear and confusion leading to heated debates about why the “virus” behaves so differently in different places, whether or not there is excess mortality, and whether or not the “vaccines” are effective.

The aggressively marketed remedy for this alleged deadly virus is a spike protein produced by a genetic sequence that is not found in nature but in a US patent from 2007. The “vaccines” based on this sequence have killed many thousands of people around the world and injured millions more.

If these anti-science methods continue to be believed and accepted, we are likely to see even more pseudo pandemics requiring more “vaccines”, continuing indefinitely as part of the “new normal”. We are already seeing this with a steady stream of “variants of concern.”

There is nothing normal about the pharmaceutical industry and globalist organisations creating demand for unnecessary gene therapies through fear and the creation of pseudo-pandemics. There is nothing normal about the unprecedented censorship of scientific debate and the prevention of medical practitioners providing real advice and informed consent.

The virus isolation fraud, the artificial viral genome fraud (including new variants), the pathogenicity fraud, the PCR fraud, and the experimental gene therapy “vaccine” fraud are crimes against humanity enabled by virology’s unscientific self-referential scientism.
